In his new series of oil paintings 'her lost necklace. your big chance', which will be presented for the first time in Basel, the Copenhagen-based artist Anders Scrmn Meisner focuses on individual stories. They are composed as different pictorial spaces, as a picture in the picture. As an essential leitmotif in Meisner's work, the new paintings contain recurring individual motifs that, depending on their composition, lead to different situations and narratives.

“Anders Scrmn Meisner is part of a long tradition starting with ‘Les Mots et les Images’ of Magritte, the ‘rebus’ of Broodthaers, the mystery of ‘Les femmes 100 têtes’ of Ernst on one side and the moral of Hogarth, the sarcasm of Daumier, the fantasy of McCay and the suspense of Pixar on the other side. In this short list we find painters and draughtsmen, poets and animation film makers but first of all we find narrators. And Anders Scrmn Meisner is a brilliant narrator. He is also a collector of rare species, a hunter of hidden treasures, a master of strange suspense and a jongleur of riddles. He is an astonishing encyclopaedist and the watchful guard of the key to a ‘Wunderkammer’, a chamber of marvels of the past, present and future. In the works of Anders Scrmn Meisner we find the superstition of the catholic Sevilla, the dry humor of the calvinistic Amsterdam, as well as the ‘joie de vivre’ (joy of life) of rainy Copenhagen; all three places where he lived and lives.” (www.scrmn.com)
